Reports of the genealogy committee for the Kreider (and variant spellings) families who came mainly from Switzerland. Their ancestors were Mennonites who escaped into the Palatinate area of Germany from religious persecution. Some immigrated to America with William Penn's colonists. "There was once a "Kreider-Greider Genealogy Committee" chaired by an Amos K. Stauffer which published four informative reports that were a great help to many researching the history of the family. These reports are dated August 7, 1929, August 6, 1930, August 2, 1933, and August 1, 1934. Unfortunately, the committee made some assumptions with the earlier generations that were incorrect or unsupported. Much of the early information from the committee reports was later untangled in an article by John Marsh, Jr. This article was published in the October 1985 issue of the Pennsylvania Mennonite Heritage." -- Web site. "The Vital Records of Williamstown, Mass., to the year 1850, published in 1907, contains an unusual number of blanks particularly in the maiden names of wives. This due to the fact that a great many of the Birth entries were made up from grave stone inscriptions, the town records of births and deaths having been burned about 1860. The existing complete records of births, marriages, and deaths in the Town Office begin with 1860, although before 1900 there were many years in which the records were carelessly kept. There are also existent a book of Marriage Intentions, 1766-1795, well preserved, and a compilation of births and deaths by families made in 1831 by the then town clerk, Ridley Bannister. The material in these two sources was included in the published Vital Records. [The author] has for some time been bringing together in a card index all information available on Williamstown families, but realizes that this is incomplete at the present time
