

Old Scandinavian Script

Fritz Juengling Ph.D., AG®

This course is designed to give family history researchers who read little or no Danish/Swedish/Norwegian and have had no experience with vital records from those countries a basic working knowledge of such records.

Objective:

Patrons will be able to read basic vocabulary in old Scandinavian script.

One of the greatest challenges of reading records in the Scandinavian languages is deciphering the script. Even if the researcher can read a Scandinavian language, that does not mean he or she will be able to read an old record. In addition to the script problem, each scribe had his own way of making letters, so that adds another level of difficulty. As with any skill, practice is necessary to gain a level of competence in reading old Scandinavian records.

Old Scandinavian script, developed centuries ago and was used in various forms into the 20th century. It was also used in countries outside Scandinavia, e.g. the Netherlands and Germany.

A short glossary. This is a mixture of languages with a variety of spellings!
